JOHN FRELINGHUYSEN HAGEMAN,

Son of Abraham Prall and Ann (Van Derveer) Hageman, was born Feb. 4, 1816, at Harlingen, N. J. He was prepared for college in the New Brunswick Grammar School, and graduated from Rutgers College in 1836. Among his classmates were the well-known men, Justice Joseph P. Bradley, of the U. S. Supreme Court, U. S. Senator and Secretary of State Frederick Frelinghuysen, and Cortlandt Parker. After his graduation Mr. Hageman came to Princeton and began the study of law with the late Judge Richard S. Field. Finishing his studies, he began the practice of law in that town in 1839. There he lived and worked until his death, May 30, 1892, in the 77th year of his age. He was a trustee of Princeton Seminary from 1851 until his death. In 1851 he united with the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, and was soon made a ruling elder, and was active in all the interests of the church. From 1859 to 1867 he was the owner and editor of the "Princeton Standard," and through it did much for the cause of the Union. He was for many years a member of the New Jersey Historical Society, the Prison Reform Association, and the Princeton Bible Society, being President of the last at the time of his death. He was also a trustee of the Mount Lucas Orphan and Guardian Institute during its existence. In 1872 he published a memoir of Dr. A. P. Hageman; in 1879, "The History of Princeton and its Institutions," and later a legal work entitled "Privileged Communications." Just before he died he was engaged in preparing a treatise on "The Civil Law of the Sabbath." He wrote the Princeton part of a Mercer County history recently published. "He was a courteous gentleman, a good citizen, an able lawyer, a valued friend, and a faithful church member."

Mr. Hageman was twice married: (1) May 26, 1847, to Miss Sarah Sergeant Miller, daughter of the Rev. Samuel Miller, D.D., LL.D., the second professor of Princeton Seminary. She died August 30, 1867. (2) Aug. 15, 1883, to Mrs. Mary Hutchings Herbert, who survives him, as do two sons by his first wife, the Rev. Samuel Miller Hageman, of Brooklyn, and John F. Hageman, Esq., of Princeton.

DANIEL PRICE,

Son of Daniel and Phebe (Thompson) Price, was born Aug. 23, 1799, in Schenectady, N. Y. Early in life he united with the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth. He received a common school education. When a boy he learned the trade of carriage-painting, and on coming of age readily obtained employment at the highest pay. Soon after his first wife's death, which occurred in 1825, he moved from Elizabethtown to Newark, carrying on there the business of carriage-painting. About this time he was given the agency of a large varnish manufacturing company, which led him to what became the main business of his life, viz., manufacturing copal varnishes. In 1867 he retired from business, having amassed a comfortable fortune. He was always generous in his gifts to charitable objects, giving away each year a large part of his income. He became a trustee of Princeton Seminary in 1858 and continued to be one until his death. He was for three years a member of the Newark common council, and for two years of the New Jersey legislature. He was one of the incorporators and directors of the Newark Savings Institution, and was prominently identified with a number of other business and charitable societies. To the latter he gave freely. He was always an earnest friend of the Seminary at Princeton. He died April 23, 1892, at Newark, N. J., of old age, in his 93rd year.

Mr. Price was twice married: (1) in 1824, to Miss Huldah Littell, who died the following year; (2) Feb. 24, 1828, to Miss Charity B. Ogden, who died Jan. 27, 1882. No children survive him.
