LEWIS GREEN BARBOUR, D.D.,

Son of James and Letitia (Green) Barbour, was born Sept. 19, 1829, in Danville, Ky. He made a public confession of his faith in the Presbyterian Church of Danville, at the age of fourteen. His preparatory studies were pursued in the preparatory department of Centre College, from which institution he graduated in 1846. He spent the following year as clerk in a mercantile establishment. He entered the Seminary at Princeton in 1847, remaining two years, when his course was interrupted by the failure of his health. He returned and continued his theological studies in 1850, graduating in 1851. He was licensed by the Presbytery of Transylvania, Sept. 19, 1851, and ordained by the Presbytery of Muhlenberg in October, 1854. From 1849 to 1850 he engaged in teaching in Boyle County, Ky. In June, 1852, he began serving the church at Bowling Green, Ky., and was installed its pastor in October, 1854, this relation being dissolved in October, 1855. During this pastorate he supplied the church at Russelville, Ky., from June, 1852, to September, 1855. He was principal of an academy in Lexington, Mo., July, 1860, to August, 1865, and engaged in teaching in Lexington, Ky., during the following year. He was principal of the Caldwell Institute, Danville, Ky., from 1866 to 1874, and professor of Mathematics and Astronomy in Central University, Richmond, Ky., from 1874 to 1901. From 1903 until his death he resided in Louisville, Ky. He died in Louisville, July 17, 1907, of a complication of diseases, in the 78th year of his age. He was buried at Danville, Ky. He received the honorary degree of D.D. in 1876 from Centre College. Dr. Barbour published pamphlets and review articles, and numerous articles on Higher Mathematics and other subjects. He was on the editorial staff of the "Transylvania Presbyterian" and the "Kentucky Presbyterian", 1876 to 1878.

He was married June 20, 1854, in Danville, Ky., to Elizabeth Ann Ford, who with two sons and two daughters survives him.

EDWARD BLANCHARD,

Son of Edward Sherburne and Jane (Archibald) Blanchard, was born Oct. 10, 1817, in Truro, N. S., Canada. He made a public confession of his faith in the First Presbyterian Church of Truro, at the age of eighteen. He had no college education. Before entering the Seminary, he was engaged in teaching in grammar schools and academies for about ten years. During this time he was principal of the Collegiate Academy of Arcadia College, Wolfville, N. S., and head master of the grammar school at St. Johns, N. B., and also principal of the Colchester Academy, in Canada. He entered the Seminary at Princeton in 1847, remaining less than a year. He never entered the pastorate, but engaged in teaching after leaving the Seminary. He taught in the preparatory department of the Presbyterian Theological College, then located in Truro, and in the high school department of the Model Schools in Truro, in connection with the Provincial Normal Schools, and in 1873, finding his strength unequal to the strain of teaching, he turned his attention to the occupation of farming and pursued it until his death, which occurred Oct. 3, 1907, at DeBert, N. S., of general debility, when he had almost completed his 90th year. He was buried in Truro.

Mr. Blanchard was married June 4, 1864, in Truro, N. S., to Margaret Coyle Metzler, who with two sons survives him.
