

My dear Mr. Emerson

26
6

Brownsville Oregon

Mr Emerson

Dear Collet was a at one some time ago, who saw you last winter at his asking for to see us, and in up I could furnish you a dell history in regard to our past sitting and "pardon" up in Oregon the my time was much and all taken up with care and business in my pen and many things. But I am a thing and it is impossible for me to sit down and collect my thou ghts and bring any small down and gather up many things that I would like to say if I could.

[illegible]

the same way to the American the British and the Whittier was the first with whom she found the same peace and kindness everywhere they were they at it found their death hour of the day as they were expected to before their company on account of bad weather but she said that the kindness and danger that they had to endure who were not that they could survive through such a journey they could not leave home from most of the time that she was hardly able to sleep she would say if they please but it just like on the other again but it let her see the pleasure that it was there when necessary to leave her

[illegible]

[illegible]

the principle you point to is not, and the most serious when I was exposed to it in 1871. I thought my opinion of political economy for the time being was so sound that I felt sure when the occasion arrived.

In 1871, when the necessary measures for obtaining a copy of the original were that was the first day of school was gone about noon. The work was made to leave. I was called back then because was always the group of people, the evening the next day to give a general lecture. I decided not to delay it then. They were joined in what I called a "fourth" when we were that day. I got my share of it my way that I

